

Year 9 Laser Skirmish

The day started like any normal school day, just a normal Friday. That was until we boarded the 'tank' up at the BBC barracks. After a short drive into enemy territory we arrived at the battle field, also known as the laser skirmish set up. Then our opponents turned up: a horde of snivelling grade 8s. After half an hour of being told what to shoot and what not to shoot, we began the games. The first game was a lot of fun with a fairly even result with neither side gaining an upper hand mainly because of the sheer fact that neither side could aim and the only tactical ploy was Keegan Bizzell lying down in one of the bunkers and shooting me in the back repeatedly. Mr Biggs and Mr Parks were big easy targets.

After we improved our tactics the games got more interesting and after the second game we were told we would now be playing 'Capture the Flag'. This day seemed to be more and more like our favourite pastime Halo.

The Capture the Flag game would consist of constant groups of people running to grab the flag and running out.

This day proved to be a great lesson in how BBC boys can always work as a team.
